During a thunderstorm...

I turned on a flashlight...

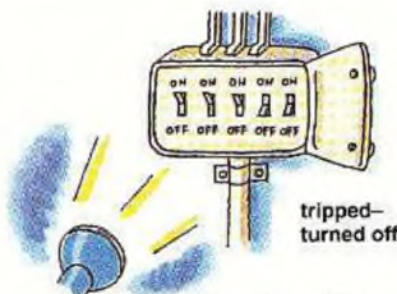

...our power went out.

...and my sister lit some candles.

We found the circuit-breaker box...

...and found the breakers that had tripped.

We reset the breakers...

...and the power came back on.

For Special Attention

- Here, power means "electric power."
- Circuit breakers look like switches. They trip—switch off—if too much electric power hits them.
- Some houses have fuses instead of circuit breakers.
- Breaker is a short form of "circuit-breaker."
- In a thunderstorm, there are bright flashes of light called lightning. The sound that follows lightning is called "thunder."
- To deal with a power failure is to do the right things after one happens.
